

Internship – Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS)

Feb. 17, 2009: NRCS booth at Spring Career Days, 11am to 4pm, Bryce Jordan Center. Are you interested in the environment and in finding practical solutions to maintaining the health of our natural resources? If so, consider an internship with the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) and come meet our representatives at our booth at the Spring Career Days. We are an equal opportunity employer and strive to have a well-qualified and diverse workforce. NRCS is a federal agency which is part of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. We seek candidates for internships who are majoring in or considering majoring in environmental resource management, ag-sciences, biology, plant sciences, forestry, soil science, ag-engineering, or other related fields. To learn more about us, please visit our website.

<http://www.pa.nrcs.usda.gov/>.

If you would like more information about NRCS contact, Ms. Yuri Plowden, NRCS Asian American/Pacific Islander Special Emphasis Program Manager

570-726-3196 ext. 122

yuri.plowden@pa.usda.gov